Background

Women's and youth perspectives and priorities are often overlooked in public policies and decision-making, and young people – especially young women – are also generally underrepresented in political office. This online Gathering will take place in the context of global challenges and uncertainties in which young people and women are disproportionately impacted, yet are playing catalyzing roles by putting forward more equitable solutions to strengthen our democracies, social protection systems, and economies.

This Gathering will explore questions such as:

1. What are the greatest needs for younger generations as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic?
2. How can youth-led initiatives and organizations be consulted in more meaningful ways?
3. What are the most innovative practices being employed in the region to promote meaningful participation by young women in electoral and other democratic processes?
4. What does a youth-friendly and gender-inclusive parliament look like?
5. What are the ideological divides between generations fighting for social equality, and how can these be overcome?

Keynote interviews

Two intergenerational dialogues structured as interviews, one in English and one in Spanish, are available, featuring a parliamentarian and a young woman leader. These establish a foundation for the overall theme of the Gathering on advancing gender equality through the engagement of youth in political processes.

The English keynote interview features Ms. Ashlee Burnett, youth leader and gender equality activist and chair of the Caribbean Women in Leadership (CIWiL) Trinidad and Tobago chapter, who speaks with the Honourable Jean Augustine, a Grenadian-Canadian former parliamentarian and minister and prominent social justice advocate. In their conversation, Ms. Burnett and Hon. Augustine explore prominent themes related to young women’s leadership and political participation; they share learning from their respective journeys as leaders and social justice advocates.

The interview is available in video and podcast format for participants’ convenience.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23 & FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 2020, 10:30 am to 1:30 pm EDT (UTC - 4)

Working group sessions: Advancing gender equality solutions with youth partners

This session will provide an opportunity for participants to engage in focused work on a gender equality topic of interest to them in collaboration with parliamentary colleagues and youth advocates. Participants will register to take part in a breakout discussion group, which will be divided by language and have a maximum of 15-20 participants each, that corresponds with themes explored in UN Sustainable Development Goal 5 (Gender Equality) and Generation Equality frameworks. Representatives from youth CSOs will be part of each group and will deliver short presentations on their organizations’ activities related to the group’s theme; this will be followed by a structured discussion to identify strategies for intergenerational collaboration and strengthened partnerships between parliaments and youth. A rapporteur will be elected by each group to capture the main points of their dialogue and deliver a brief presentation of these during the following week’s plenary.

Plenary session (with interpretation)

This session will build on the learning from previous Gathering activities to explore youth-inclusive and gender-responsive parliamentary and political mechanisms. The plenary will begin with a rapporteur from each of the working groups held the previous week delivering a short presentation on the key points discussed in their respective sessions. A panel of experts will then discuss how different strategies -- such as political party recruitment, hiring practices in parliaments, internship and mentorship programs, youth advisory groups, and children’s programs -- can be employed to bring youth voices into legislative and political conversations in a sustainable way. The Gathering will conclude with the reading and approval of the final declaration, reflecting the discussions among parliamentarians and youth participants throughout the sessions.
