

Legislators

Develop legislative initiatives, in collaboration with journalists and the media, on the equitable media treatment of all genders.

Promote training programs on gender equality and human rights for journalists and communicators.

Support the creation of guidelines on equal media treatment free of gender stereotypes.

Denounce sexist and non-inclusive media coverage.

Participate in media observatories that monitor inequality and discrimination in the coverage of women politicians.

These proposals are the result of a collaborative exercise¹ undertaken by parliamentarians, former parliamentarians, and journalists from Latin America who participated in the III Beijing +20 Parliamentary Forum: Gender Equality and the Media, organized by ParlAmericas on January 12 and 13, 2017, in Santiago, Chile.

Journalists & Media

Avoid sexist language and imagery, negative adjectives, and stereotypes in media coverage of women politicians.

Seek the opinions of women and men politicians in equal proportions in news and information spaces.

Develop and adopt guidelines on equal media treatment free of gender stereotypes.

Apply the principle of reversibility, omitting references to the private lives, physical appearances, or dress of women politicians when these would not be mentioned for men.

Disseminate women politicians' perspectives on topics where men are normally consulted (economics, finance, defence).
